

Background information

Happy Senso is a multisensory gel that has been developed together with occupational therapists, physiotherapists, remedial therapists and speech therapists. The mission of Happy Senso is to both provide stimulation with the product, and also care for stimulation by help creating more attention for stimulus processing, like it deserves.

The official launch of Happy Senso was during the ESIC 2017 in Vienna, and furtheron demonstrated on several type of events, like PIMD congres, World Occupational Day at HAN University, Health-Valley, ISIC 2018 Capetown and WFOT 2018, with an enormous amount of very positive reactions and experiences. During ISIC Hong Kong 2019 the new Artist variants with the extra color feature have been launched.

Happy Senso has also been selected for the first finals of the Dutch Healthcare Innovation Award 2018

Education & cooperation

Happy Senso and the HAN University Pediatric Physiotherapy cooperate together since 2017. Happy Senso nowadays creates international experiences for students. Students get the chance to attend events/ congresses for workshops, lecturers and side-events to gain more knowledge and build out the international students network. During the International Sensory Integration Congress in Hong Kong for example we created the opportunity for a Dutch student to attend lectures on Hong Kong polyU, cooperate with a local Hong Kong student and a clinical associate professor from Hong Kong PolyU Department of Rehabilitation Sciences to share experience & knowledge.

The picture is of a group of Higher Professional Nurse Education students at the Avans University of Applied Sciences who asked for support during a special school project. They did a great job representing Happy Senso and were very proud to get the opportunity creating extra awareness and attention for Sensory Integration, one of the goals of Happy Senso as a company.

Variants available:

NEUTRAL: (Artist = blue)

Doesn't linger after use. Perfect (for example) if a person is very sensitive towards fragrances and/or it is not desired that the focus stays on the fragrance after use.

TROPICAL: (Artist = yellow)

A quite sweet and tropical kind of fragrance, mostly appreciated by children, although they love them all...

MINT-FRESH: (Artist = green)

A mint/methol fragrance, provides a slightly cooling effect after use. Perfect to trigger the attention (of a specific bodypart) after use.

SWEETNESS: (Artist = pink/red)

A very sweet kind of fragrance, mostly like strawberry. This special one is there for lovely sweet ones...

Who benefits ?

Happy Senso is interesting for several types of therapists. For example occupational therapists, fysiotherapists, remedial therapists and speech therapists. And also for educators and trainers of these specialists and parents.

Happy Senso can be very usefull for people with Profound Intellectual Multiple Disabilities, people with Down Syndome, people with Autism Spectrum Disorder, people with Dementia and Visually Impaired people.

Reference

We have experienced much passion by using Happy Senso. Immediately for me, as a behavioral scientist for the target group Profound Intellectual Multiple Disabilities the translation into the care for the clients starts.

It can be helpful to increase their alertness, but also to close the environment and focus on yourself and the sensation that you feel about your own body. By offering it in several ways, it can be offered individually or as a group, so that the function changes, from experiencing your own body to experiencing it in the group and making contact.
